UNIQLO and Our Town

vol.08   Italy [Roma]

UNIQLO is part of the community. This time around, we're focusing on Rome, home to the second UNIQLO in Italy to open after the first store in Milan.

Here's a glimpse at recent trends in this city of historic landmarks.

Vuotopieno

Guest House

This cluster of apartments is located within walking distance of sightseeing hotspots like Piazza di Spagna and Vatican City. These spaces, which are also used as galleries, have been decorated by in-house architects with antique Tuscan furniture like something out of an interiors magazine. One has a bedroom with a gorgeous ceiling painting. Each apartment has a kitchen. Guests can stay from 3 to 10 nights. Starting from 230-250 euros per night, though rates can vary by the season, so be sure to check ahead.
